

GREECE

Looking Ahead

How We Pave Roads For Growth

Investments are paramount to capture the potential and change the structure of the economy; Greece would just need to gradually restore its pre crisis €50-55 billion annual investment threshold, an extra €16 billion from 2011 levels;

How can this be done?

George D. Tsopelas, the Managing Partner of McKinsey&Company, Athens Office, extracts from their latest research the five mega priorities necessary to break the vicious circle and turn it to a virtuous one and ignites the discussion presenting the unique opportunities for boosting revenues and employment in our country.
