

facing the real challenge: stability in the tax framework

No tax reform will be good enough for investors unless they are confident that there will be no "tax surprises" ahead.

The effort towards economic reform has led to a variety of consecutive changes in domestic tax law. Even if we accept that the long-anticipated new tax framework has managed to cover any pre-existing discrepancies, the stability is the real challenge ahead not only in the legislation itself but also in the actual implementation of tax law.

Panos Papazoglou, Managing Partner EY & Stephanos Mitsios, Head of Tax EY, will ignite the discussion sharing with us their experience on how the recent changes in tax legislation will influence your business and investors' decisions for "doing business in Greece".
